Hello!

2017 Greek Council Presidents:

Congratulations on your decision to come to Georgia Tech. You've already made one of the most important decisions of your life, and you've chosen one of the best institutions in the country. As leaders of the Greek community, we're excited about the potential in this year's incoming freshman class. During your time in college, you will have many exciting learning experiences, but none so complete, well-rounded, and long-remembered as that of being a member of a Greek organization. Even though you may have no intention of joining a Greek organization, it is worth your time and effort to go through the recruitment process in order to meet new people and learn more about the different facets of the Georgia Tech community as a whole.

As a potential member, we ask that you keep an open mind and base your decision on your personal opinions and not those of friends, relatives, other potential members, or stereotypes you may have heard or formed. Joining a fraternity or sorority is a lifelong decision that will be one of the most rewarding experiences of your life. There is a chapter for everyone, but what is right for your friends or family members may not be the right choice for you. Additionally, fraternities and sororities today are vastly different from stereotypes you may have seen or heard of in the past. Even from campus to campus, individual chapters carry a personality all their own, and it is up to you to choose the organization that best represents your ideals and values. New members of Greek organizations enter a community of leaders, academic achievers, philanthropists, and a social circle of friends that is unmatched by any other experience.

No matter what group you choose, the friendships you form will be lifelong. We encourage you to visit our website for more information about summer events and contact information. If you have any additional questions, feel free to contact us. (All emails end in @gmail.com)

Think about it...

Home Away From Home

If you aren't sure Greek Life is for you, or if you don't even know what it is, keep this in mind:

If you value academics, philanthropy, and leadership, and you are looking to form a close network of friends - the Greek community at Tech may be for you!

Not everyone thinks of "going Greek" when they come to Tech, based on what they heard or seen about Greek organizations, but there is more to Greek Life than what meets the eye. It is only once you participate in recruitment or start to meet Greek students at Tech that you realize whether or not Greek Life is for you. Always keep in mind there are over 50 chapters to choose from, each one is unique and has different values. Find the one that fits best for you, and you will begin the most well-rounded and memorable college experience possible. Continue reading to hear more from the students themselves!

Summer 2017

Dear incoming YellowJackets,

Welcome to Georgia Tech! The time you spend at Tech will be exciting; filled with new experiences, friends, and knowledge. All aspects of your life can be enhanced if you set yourself up to make the most of the time you are here. Joining a fraternity or sorority is a great way to make new friends, develop leadership skills, serve the community, get involved on campus, and enhance your academic potential.

Greek life is a tradition at Georgia Tech that is over 125 years old. Fraternities are almost as old as Georgia Tech itself, dating back to 1888 with the founding of Alpha Tau Omega. Sororities have been at the heart of our advancement of women since women started attending Tech over 60 years ago. As a result of this heritage, over 25% of undergraduate students are members of fraternities and sororities.

Tech Greeks contribute countless hours and dollars raised to support local and national charities each year as well as serving the Atlanta community hands on in many ways. Becoming involved elsewhere on campus is also highly encouraged by the Greek community. Just as it is important for Greeks to give back to the surrounding community, it is just as important to give back to Tech as well.

The best thing about fraternity and sorority life at Tech is that you can do all of the above and still make good grades! All of our fraternities and sororities have study hours built in to their new member programs and many of the chapter houses have study rooms with computers, large tables for group work, and spaces to meet with tutors. Many Greek students also secure co-op program opportunities, study abroad and intern with companies because of their fraternal connections.

We encourage you to attend our Greek 101 session on the first day of FASET Orientation, ask questions, and explore membership in a fraternity or sorority. The 2017 Guide to Greek Life is merely an introduction to what we have to offer. Inside, you will find contact information for students who can answer some of your questions, and feel free to contact our office. We will be helping out at Move-In as well and look forward to meeting you all!

Share this information with your family and discuss the responsibilities and incredible benefits that can come through being Greek at Georgia Tech.

Congratulations again and THWG!

Who we are...

The Greek Community

Academics

The Greek community at Georgia Tech realizes that excelling in academics is the top priority of every student. Each Greek organization has its own unique way of encouraging and rewarding superior academic performance. Chapters, as well as the four Greek governing councils, sponsor various educational programs and awards.

Programs may include:

- time management and study skills seminars,
- scheduled study hours with free tutoring,
- organized study groups,
- and advice on courses and professors.

Order of Omega, a Greek honor society, also inspires Greeks to reach their highest potential by rewarding academic excellence. As members of the Greek community, we stand firm in our dedication to good scholarship and believe that educational success at Georgia Tech prepares men and women for personal and professional success. Retention rates, graduation rates, and grade point averages are higher for Greeks.

There is a Greek academic/membership breakdown at the end of this guide.

Leadership

The Greek community develops members by offering many executive board leadership positions - either in their individual chapter, or through a Greek governing council. Throughout your years in a fraternity or sorority, skills are gained through a variety of experiences. In addition to involvement within their chapters, Greek students learn leadership qualities through on-campus and co-op jobs or internships, and other student organizations.

Being involved in a Greek organization also allows you to network and increase your involvement on campus, and as a result, many leadership positions on Georgia Tech's campus are held by members of the Greek community.

Quick Facts:

Freshmen Retention Rate
Greek: 97.6%
Non-Greek: 94.7%

Graduation Rate
Greek: 86.7%
Non-Greek: 80%

Philanthropy

Every national fraternity or sorority has a designated charity or philanthropy that they regularly sponsor. Each local Georgia Tech chapter participates in projects which support their national organization's cause.

Every year, Greeks come together for large scale philanthropy projects such as St. Baldrick's and the AIDS Walk. Greeks assist with many projects during Homecoming and Greek Week that range from planting flowers, to volunteering at homeless shelters and repairing local parks. In addition, Greeks at Georgia Tech host Habitat for Humanity Builds for families in need in the Atlanta Community. In the spring, Greeks participate in Dance Marathon and the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life.

At Georgia Tech, Greeks feel it is important to contribute their time and efforts to their community, as everyone is able to learn and grow through serving others.

Athletics

Athletics are an integral part of Greek Life at Tech. Many chapters participate in Tech's 20+ intramural sports programs offered throughout the year. Fraternities and sororities compete in their own league for the Greek championship, then advance to play in the school championship rounds. In addition to intramural sports, Greek chapters receive block-seating at all home football games. This guarantees you a seat in the same section of the stadium with others from your chapter, so you never have to worry about standing in line to get a seat!

The Greek Community

Alumni

Greek organizations have been on Georgia Tech's campus for over 125 years. Since the first fraternity was chartered in 1888, thousands of young men and women have been initiated into Georgia Tech's numerous fraternities and sororities.

Fraternity and sorority alumni stay active with their respective local and national chapters, as well as the Institute, long after they have completed their degrees at Tech. Although alumni support Georgia Tech and their chapters financially, they also act as mentors and serve as great examples for undergraduate members. Greek alumni demonstrate how fraternity or sorority association can equip its members with the skills to excel personally and professionally.

When you graduate, alumni networks generate valuable resources that can assist you in finding a great job and much more. Alumni networks reach far beyond individual chapters and across various geographies. Imagine how it will feel to be able to go anywhere in the United States (and even beyond) and have automatic connections through a fraternity or sorority!

Social

In addition to academic and leadership opportunities, Greek organizations provide a balance to the academic rigors of Georgia Tech with a full social schedule. Social events include:

- Semi-formals
- Formals
- Date Nights
- Parents and Family Weekends
- Alumni gatherings
- Step shows

Each of these events is organized and planned with enjoyment as well as safety in mind; each organization follows a responsible social policy laid out by Georgia Tech, our student governing boards, and national risk management policies.

“It’s Greek to Me”...

Greek Terminology

Bid - an invitation to join a fraternity or sorority chapter. Bid policies differ for fraternities and sororities

Chartered - the date an organization started a local chapter or colony.

Continuous Open Bidding (COB) - an opportunity for Panhellenic chapters that are eligible to extend bids to potential members outside of formal recruitment.

Formal Recruitment - the process CPC sororities uses each fall to select new members.

Initiation - a formal ceremony, for some organizations, that signifies transfer from associate or new member status to fully initiated, active membership

Intake - The process NPHC/MGC chapters perform to recruit, interview, choose, and educate new members.

Legacy - a person whose parent, brother/sister, or grandparent was a member of a fraternity or sorority. Legacy stipulations differ for each sorority and fraternity and do not guarantee membership.

MRABA - Membership Acceptance Binding Agreement; a form potential new members will sign indicating they will accept whichever bid extended to them by a Panhellenic sorority.

New Member/Pledge - term applied to members that have accepted a bid and are affiliated with a fraternity or sorority but have not yet been initiated.

Neo/Neophyte - term used by NPHC/MGC organizations; similar to “New Member.”

Order of Omega - Membership to the Order includes being within the top 3% of the Greek GPA, junior or senior status, and significant leadership/service to campus.

Potential New Member (PNM) - a woman participating in formal recruitment.

Probate - a new member presentation where the newest members of NPHC/MGC chapters present history, reveal who they are and often step or stroll.

Prophyte - term used by NPHC/MGC chapters to refer to an older brother/sister who has had a line cross below them.

Recruitment Counselor - A woman who disafiliates from her organization during formal recruitment and is trained to guide PNMs during that time.

Ritual - the traditions of fraternities and sororities which are usually known only to initiated members.

Rush - a period of time set by IFC during the school semester designated for the recruitment of new members.

Stepping/Strolling - Historically black traditions characterized by synchronized hand foot movements, along with singing, dancing, chanting, and acting.

Parents and Families; How You Can Help

A fraternity/sorority offers a wonderful support system that can help your student with everything from adjusting to the academic rigors of Georgia Tech to finding a “home away from home.” Upperclassmen in fraternities and sororities have been through many, if not all, of the situations that your student will experience as a student at Georgia Tech. Fraternity and sorority members can provide invaluable advice to help your student make good choices that will ensure their future success.

However, the active members of a chapter are not the only source of guidance. Most chapters have vast alumni networks that can open many doors to future opportunities. Many famous Tech graduates are alumni of fraternities and sororities at Georgia Tech.

If your student is considering “going Greek,” remember that what you may have seen on television or in movies is very about misleading what being “Greek” really means. In addition, your time in college will be drastically different than what your student may experience. If you still have reservations with allowing your student to join a fraternity or sorority, contact the Office of Greek Affairs or the Parents Program Office.

As a parent or family member, there is a lot you can do for your student during their Greek experience. Deciding which organization to join can certainly produce excitement and a bit of anxiety. You can be there to counsel them through their decision:

- Check in with your student during the recruitment process.
- Talk with your student about all of their options to join, even if those options do not include their friends’ choices.
- Discuss reasons for joining the group: opportunity to engage in service/philanthropy, social support, impact on academics, etc.
- Consider the financial obligations of joining a fraternity/sorority.

See you at FASET!

Staff members and students will be at every session to answer questions about your student’s
Greek experience.

If your student decides to join, you are encouraged to be involved in the chapter experience. Many parents and families choose to get involved in a variety of ways:

- Ask your student about their new brothers or sisters.
- Visit the chapter's website and the official website of the fraternity/sorority headquarters.
- Review the fraternity/sorority mission, values, and tenants of membership.
- Encourage your student to take a leadership role in their chapter.
- Know the grade requirements for new and active members.
- Be supportive of your student if they do not receive a bid to join an organization. Encourage and remind them that there is plenty for them to get involved with at Georgia Tech!
- Attend Family Weekend events.
- Join or start a Parents Club.
- Encourage your student to take advantage of chapter resources, and scholarships.
- Encourage your student to attend educational programs in the chapter and on campus.
- Know the contact information for the chapter, and your student's big brother/big sister.

At no time should your student's membership detract from their academic performance, job or co-op duties, nor their ability to be a successful student at Tech. Unfortunately, there are activities that can be divisive to the growth and development of your student. Alcohol misuse and hazing are issues that plague fraternities and sororities across the United States and Canada. At Tech, we work diligently to address these issues in the community. However, our institution appreciates your support in reporting these issues. If you have questions or concerns, please feel free to contact the Office of Greek Affairs, the Parents Program Office or the specific fraternity/sorority headquarters.

NPHC SPOTLIGHT

Q. How did your views of being Greek change from before you got to Tech to after you arrived on campus?

Before arriving at Tech, my only notions as to what Greek life would be like came from stories I heard from my father who was also a member of Kappa Alpha Psi during his years at Tech. After joining the fraternity myself, however, I noticed that not everything was about the parties, business connections, and strolling. I've learned, and am still learning, valuable lessons about brotherhood, manhood, and being a leader.

Daniel Seal

Major: Industrial Design

Q. How has being a part of an NPHC organization affected you as a Georgia Tech student?

Tech already offers a diverse student experience as is, but there is an added benefit of being a part of the NPHC - it opens up greater avenues of opportunity. It has charged me with a bigger commitment to service while representing something much larger than myself. I have enhanced my skills of time management, conflict resolution, communication, and effective collaboration through event programming for my chapter while balancing my studies. Thus understanding that I represent both my org and this institution with pride wherever I go as they are connected through the council.

Nelson Raphael

Major: Electrical Engineering

IFC SPOTLIGHT

Q: How has your Greek affiliation made a positive impact on your Georgia Tech experience?

My Greek affiliation has challenged and motivated me to create projects and new ideas outside of CS classes, surround myself with a group of like-minded and highly successful men in my chapter, and has given me the push to become better in all aspects of my academics, social life, and professional career. The connections through Chapter Alumni in the Software industry have also benefited me significantly in pursuing internships, co-ops, and full time job opportunities. I would not be in my current position if it wasn't for Greek life.

Ryan Brooks

Major: Computer Science

Q. How has your Greek affiliation helped you to become more involved in other activities at Georgia Tech?

As an out of state student, I didn't know a single person when I got here. My Greek organization really helped bridge that gap, and enabled me to get involved with a Freshman Leadership Organization within the first few weeks of school. Older brothers and mentors within the chapter have greatly aided with my academic development as well. Without my Greek organization, I never would've gotten involved with Career Fair, Barbell club or numerous other intramurals and groups, and I never would have met so many great Tech students.

Jack Corelli

Major: Biomedical Engineering

Q. What advice would you give to incoming freshmen?

Georgia Tech is a wonderful institute, ripe with infinite possibilities and paths to take. I invite you all to explore different organizations, events, and communal groups to find where you fit in the best. College is an exciting time of your life because you can truly discover the person that you want to be. This may seem like an incredibly daunting task, but just remember that everyone around you is sharing this novel experience with you. At Georgia Tech, you are never alone.

Sujay Peramanu

Major: Industrial Engineering

CPC SPOTLIGHT

Information about the Collegiate Panhellenic Council and its member chapters is available on page 17.

Q. What is your favorite aspect of being involved in CPC??

Because sorority women are the largest group of educated women in America, being a part of this community is an amazing way to complement your undergraduate experience. And as CPC's Director of Philanthropy, we are working to raise money in order to build a school in a developing nation in collaboration with Circle of Sisterhood - CPC's national philanthropy. COS was founded as a way for collegiate women to help spread women's education worldwide, particularly in countries affected by oppression and poverty.

Ana Jafarina

Major: Mechanical Engineering

Q. How were you able to balance schoolwork with your involvement in the Greek community?

It definitely takes up a lot of time, but when you're doing things you love and making great friendships, it has always been worth it for me! At the end of the day, I came to Georgia Tech to get a good education, and always put school work first.

Megan Kitzmiller

Major: Business Administration

Q. How do your values align with those of the CPC community?

One thing that CPC really values is empowering women to develop into great leaders. This really resonates with me because leadership is so applicable to all aspects of college life, and life after graduation. Being a member of the CPC community sets you up to be succeed in your future career, as well as providing you with a group of women who will support you in all aspects of college life.

Hannah Orr

Major: Mechanical Engineering

Q. How has Greek affiliation had a positive impact on your GT experience?

The best thing that the Greek community has given me are the role models. I've been empowered to take leadership roles in other clubs and to participate in GT traditions. Freshman Margaret was more timid and quiet. Greek life has given me confidence and a voice. I cannot thank GT Greek life enough!

Margaret Buxton

Major: Business Administration

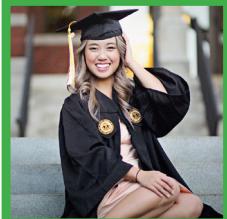

MGC SPOTLIGHT

Information about the Multicultural Greek Council and its member chapters is available on page 38.

Q. How would you describe the impact that being Greek can have on your collegiate experience?

I wanted to join a smaller organization that focused on personal ties and professional growth. Delta Phi Lambda allowed me to do this because I was able to take on larger leadership roles that I otherwise wouldn't be able to take in a larger organization.

Arianne Quinanola
Major: Industrial Design

Q. What inspired you to join a Multicultural Greek organization?

I was looking into rushing before I got on campus because I was out of state and wanted to meet people. One of the brothers handed me a flyer so I went to a couple recruitment events. I really liked how close everybody was and I felt like I was in a real close-knit friend group like I had in high school.

Justan Su
Major: Mechanical Engineering

Q. How were you able to balance schoolwork with your involvement in the Greek community?

I was able to learn from the great examples set by members from my fraternity as well as members from other MGC organizations when it came to managing schoolwork and extra-curricular activities. Whether it be having older brothers to tutor me in a subject or companions for late nights in the library, there was never a shortage of academic support from my Greek community to stress that school comes first!

Joel Joseph
Major: Industrial Engineering

Q. What advice would you give to incoming freshmen?

Try new things! Joining a sorority wasn't "my thing" when I came to Tech, but you may see it differently after you realize it just a group of close-knit friends that enjoy each other's company and push you to be better!

What is IFC?

IFC stands for Interfraternity Council, and as an organization it serves as an advocate and governing board for its 32 chapters at Georgia Tech. You can learn more about the details of this on our website at fraternity.gatech.edu.

If you have visited Georgia Tech, you have most likely seen the houses around East Campus that are adorned with Greek letters. We also have three IFC fraternities that do not have a physical on-campus residence. The other eight Greek letter houses on campus are CPC sororities (see pg. 19 for more information).

The members of these 32 fraternities make up the membership of IFC, and they represent the largest population of students within the Georgia Tech Greek community by a substantial margin. These men are come from all across the country and some from across the globe to study all of the various academic programs GT has to offer.

What is Rush?

Rush is a week-long opportunity to learn about the Georgia Tech community and meet many of your fellow Ramblin Wrecks. You might already know you want to join a fraternity. You might have never even considered joining a fraternity at any point in your life. That's OK.

There is absolutely no commitment involved in Rush Week. It's very casual, and you can go at your own pace. You just show up to fraternity houses or events (after you have registered, see the next page for more information), eat free food, and talk to people.

Of course, with 32 chapters, there is a lot of variety in our Greek community at Georgia Tech, and when you find a fraternity that you like, and that fraternity likes you, a fraternity might give you n invitation to join their brotherhood.

Interfraternity Council

Fraternities today...

Values

In general, the crucial difference between a fraternity and any other typical student organization is that fraternities are based on strong values. Whether our organizations are brand new or 125 years old, all of them find success in aligning their actions with their values.

Friendship

College represents an opportunity to make friends that you will have for the rest of your life. Whether or not you join, the Georgia Tech IFC community offers you an awesome opportunity to make new friends, both freshmen and upperclassmen, through the experience of Rush Week.

Academics

At Georgia Tech, the Greek community consistently maintains a higher GPA than the non-Greek community. For a breakdown of these statistics in detail, go to greek.gatech.edu.

Leadership

Fraternities offer both internal leadership opportunities because they themselves need strong leaders, but also external leadership opportunities. Greek men and women represent the vast majority of campus leadership positions. As such, Greek Life can sometimes be a springboard for other involvement opportunities on campus.

Philanthropy

The fraternal values of our community lead us to many philanthropic and service endeavors within the Georgia Tech and Atlanta community. Fraternities provide a great outlet to continue or to build a passion for serving others and making a difference in the world.

Athletics

Fraternities compete against each other in fraternity-only leagues in intramural sports, but also compete against other groups, particularly in the playoffs. Most of the time, the competition is fierce, but more importantly, it is always fun and a great way to relieve stress.

No Hazing

Every fraternity has outlawed hazing in any form, and all have stated that hazing is contrary to the ideals of Fraternity. In the State of Georgia, hazing is a criminal offense. IFC and the Georgia Tech administration are unconditionally opposed to any situation created to produce mental and/or physical discomfort, embarrassment, harassment or ridicule.

Social Responsibility

During the week of rush, all fraternity houses and events are required to be free from any alcohol, and IFC patrols each chapter to ensure compliance with this rule. If you do join, you can look forward to a rewarding social life integrated with the culture and traditions of the Institute. IFC fraternity parties are regulated by clear and reasonable policies that keep our community safe.

Costs

New students are often worried about the monetary costs of fraternity. This is something you should discuss with each fraternity individually. Many times it is possible that joining a fraternity can lower costs over the course of your college tenure.

Fraternity Cost

	Fraternity Cost	Georgia Tech
Housing (per semester)	$2157	$3131 ¹
Meal Plan	$848	$1665 ²
Meals / week	9	12-13
Average cost/ meal	$5.88	$8.325
Dues	$982	-
Total	$3987	$4796

This table is a breakdown of average Georgia Tech cost versus average fraternity costs for a student in their second-year, and beyond. As you can tell, on average, fraternity members' costs are on par with Georgia Tech's while enjoying the additional benefits of fraternity life!

Difference

$800 per semester
$4000 over 3 years

Please remember that this table shows only averages, and individual chapter prices may be higher or lower than those listed. On average, the first-year cost of joining a fraternity at Tech is higher than the costs listed above.

Recruitment/Rush

Before You Start School

Recruitment Events

If you are in or near the Atlanta area this summer, you may be invited to rush events by fraternities. This is a great way to get head start on Rush Week and start getting to know some fraternity men. We encourage all potential new members to meet multiple fraternities before making a final decision about joining. Please note that these events should not involve alcohol in any way.

Required Registration

You are required to register for Rush Week online at fraternity.gatech.edu. It is completely free and it can only help you by giving fraternities a way to learn more about you and potentially contact you. There is no obligation to participate after you have registered, but is a great way to get information and updates about the process.

IFC at FASET

You can meet IFC and learn more about us and all of Georgia Tech Greek Life at FASET Orientation. Come to our "Greek Life 101" breakout session to get background information and helpful statistics. You will hear about GT Greek Life right from the source! Also, please visit our tables at the involvement fair and during class registration. This will give you the chance to meet us on a more individual basis and ask us more specific questions.

Registration for Rush is required.
Link is available at fraternity.gatech.edu.

Tips for Rush Week

1) Keen an open mind. Many people that end up joining a fraternity did not plan on it before they came to college. Rush is a great opportunity to see if going Greek is a good fit for you.

2) Be yourself. The fraternity wants to get to know the real you; don't feel overwhelmed if they ask you a lot of questions. They want to get to know you as much as you want to get to know them.

3) Do your homework. Check out greek.gatech.edu, this Guide, and chapter websites. Being prepared for Rush will help you get the most out of it.

4) Don't get discouraged. There are 32 chapters. If you haven't found one you like, keep looking. You do not have to make a decision this week, or even this semester.

5) Use the narrow down approach. First, select 10-15 chapters through research and the Kick-Off tabling event. Then, visit between 5-10 chapters during the first two days of rush. In days three and four, invest more time with the ones you connect with most as you narrow down your final choices throughout the week.

Things to Remember

1) Register for rush at fraternity.gatech.edu

2) There should be no alcohol present at any rush activities, on campus or off campus. If there is alcohol present, please notify the Office of Greek Affairs or IFC Executive members.

3) No fraternity endorses or condones any form of hazing. If you experience hazing, please notify the Office of Greek Affairs or IFC Executive members.

4) Not all our IFC fraternities have houses on campus. Rush Week is about meeting and getting to know people, regardless of where they live.

5) There are a lot of stereotypes out there about fraternities. Rush Week is your opportunity to meet Fraternity Men and determine your own opinion.

6) Bring your buzzcard with you to Rush Kickoff and then each house you visit throughout the week as you will be asked to check in.

7) Follow us on Instagram - @gt_ifc and Facebook!

Frequently Asked Questions

How does the bid process work?

Bids are an official invitation to join a fraternity as an associate member/pledge. A fraternity can give a bid at any time of the year according to their policy. Chapters will generally give a bid if they feel you could be a good fit for their organization. You may receive bids from many fraternities and then decide where you fit best. Do not feel pressured into accepting the first bid you receive! You don't have to accept a bid if you don't feel a particular fraternity is right for you.

Do I have to become a brother if I accept my bid?

No! Pledge period is a time for you to get to know the fraternity and for the fraternity to get to know you more. Both have options of ending the pledge period at any time if the fit is no longer right.

Pledge periods vary in length, but are generally two to three months long. During that time, you will learn the history of the fraternity, bond with the brothers and other pledges, and participate in service projects, intramurals, socials, date nights, mixers, and other aspects of fraternity life.

Will I get hazed?

No! If a fraternity pledge program involves hazing, chapters face serious consequences for hazing pledges or brothers. IFC and Georgia Tech have developed strict guidelines to make the pledge process as safe as possible.

What if I don't have time?

While you are expected to become involved and participate in events with the fraternity, they realize that you are also adjusting to college life. If anything, a fraternity will help teach you valuable time management and study skills. Fraternity members can offer you help with your classes and will make sure you are studying to get grades equal to your ability. After investing time and effort into you as a pledge, the fraternity is committed to helping you succeed.

What if I can't afford it?

It is important for you to make sure you can fulfill the financial obligations of pledgeship and being a member. However, being in a fraternity is usually cheaper than living on campus after your first year (information about finances are on page 47). Chapter presidents and treasurers are also generally willing to work out payment options for members. Talk to the fraternities you are interested in about how their dues work and how it can work into your budget.

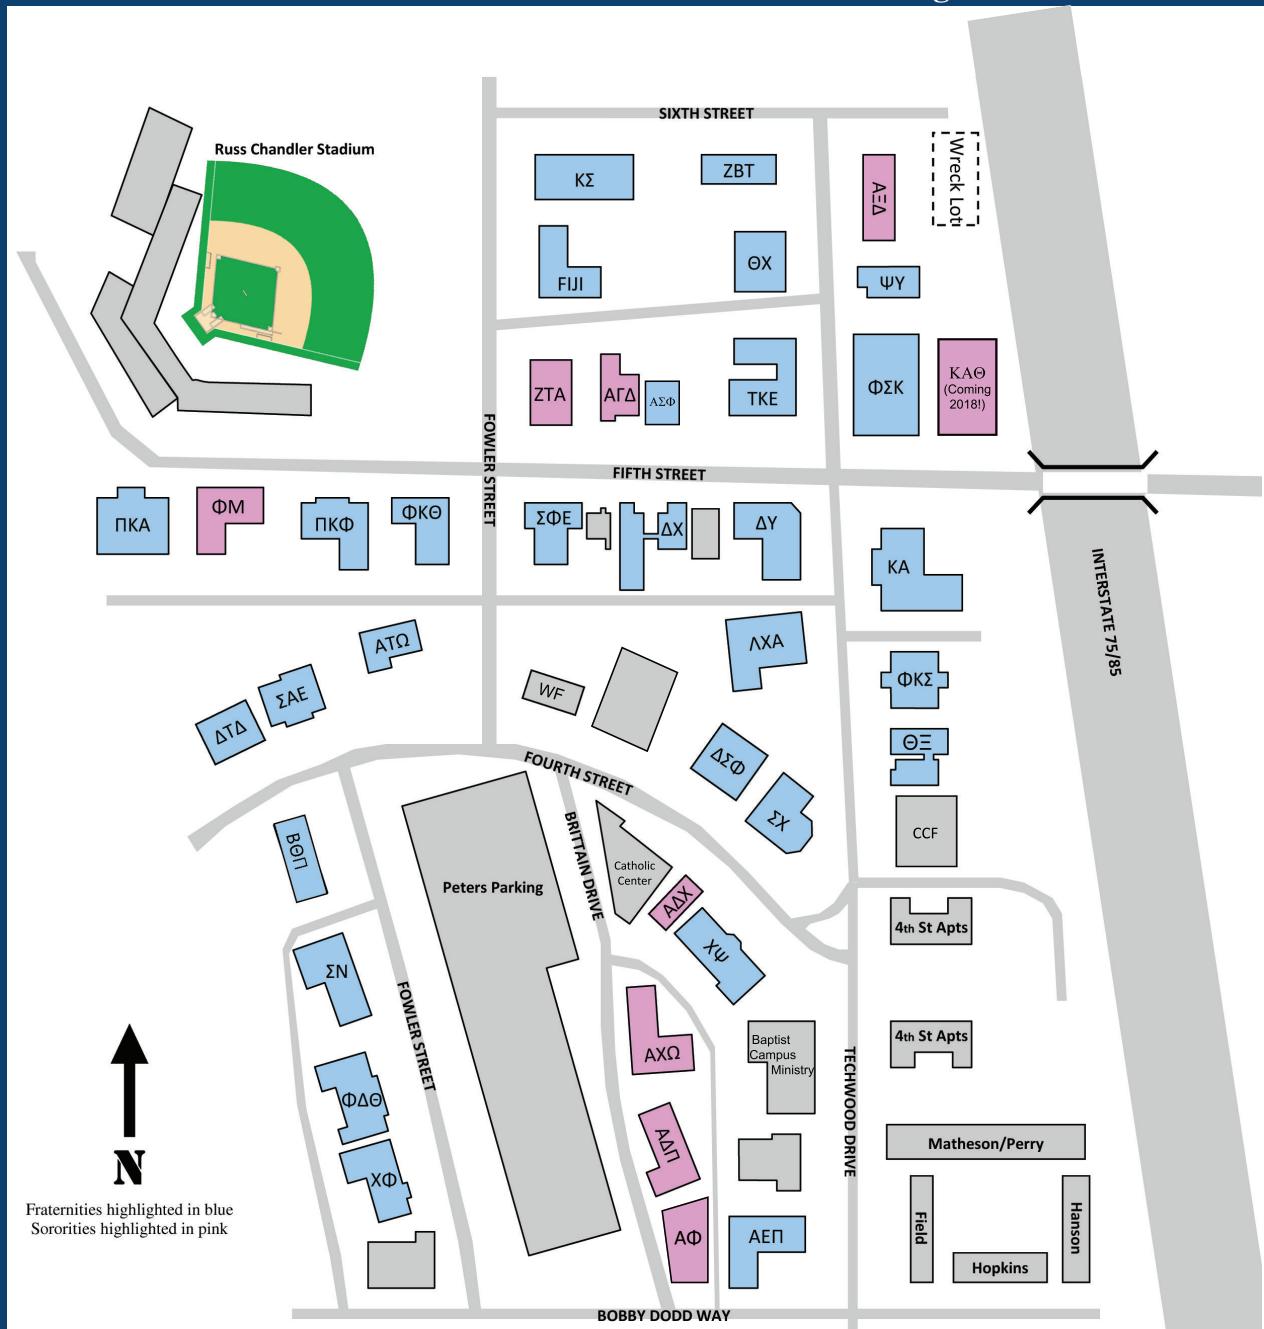

What should I wear to rush?

Rush is very informal, so wear whatever you feel comfortable in. Most chapters will be dressed in business casual — a collared shirt and khakis, but you aren't expected to wear anything in particular.

Tech Chapter: Beta Pi, est. 1948

Philanthropic Efforts

Over the past two years, our chapter has raised nearly $30,000 through various fundraisers dedicated towards St. Baldrick's foundation.

Accomplishments and Awards

- Voted "Top TKE Chapter" by nationals
- Top 6 Intramurals Fraternity
- Top 16 Overall Fraternity

About our Brotherhood

TKE is the largest fraternity nationwide, and our chapter here has staked its claim as one of the finest branches it has to offer. Not only do we enjoy the strongest social calendar on campus (with band parties, date nights, mixers, formals, and more), we also have a GPA north of 3.0. Given TKE's success in intramural sports and the number of leaders it places in organizations throughout campus, it's easy to see why TKE offers the most well rounded fraternal experience at Georgia Tech.

Tech Chapter: Returning to campus Fall 2017!

Philanthropic Efforts

The Serious Fun Children's Network was created by actor, racecar driver, brother of Phi Kappa Tau Paul Newman (Ohio '43) in 1988. This series of summer camps were designed for children facing life threatening illnesses to be able to escape the fear and isolation of their medical conditions and, in his words "raise a little hell." From humble beginnings in Ashford, Connecticut the Network has grown to 29 camps worldwide serving more than 1,000,000 children at no cost to their families.

About our Brotherhood

Establishing itself this fall, Phi Kappa Tau is the latest addition to the Georgia Tech Fraternity community.

With Phi Kappa Tau being new to this campus the opportunity presents itself to create a unique identity for this brotherhood. Academics, leadership, and service are our 'what' and the how is up to you. Using diversity and transparency as the primary tools we are looking to build a fraternity that will create a tradition of excellence on this campus for many years to come. With the help of over 1,000 area alumni and hundreds of undergraduates at nearby universities this colony will quickly become one of our top groups in the nation.

All we need now is you.

Honor Societies

Order of Omega is a national Honor Society for juniors/seniors in the Greek community. Members are chosen based on scholastic achievements, leadership, and involvement in the Georgia Tech and Greek Community. As an organization they host leadership development opportunities such as networking events and guest speaker series.

Gamma Sigma Alpha was founded at the University of Southern California on November 9, 1989, by a group of scholastic achievers representing various fraternities and sororities dedicated to the advancement of higher education and academic accomplishment. Today, this honor society has more than 215 chapters and recognizes nearly 2,000 members of fraternities and sororities each year. The chapter here at Tech has a membership requirement of junior/senior standing who have achieved at least a 3.85 cumulative or semester GPA. This recognizes the top 5% of our Greek community academically.

Management Information Systems Club

The MIS Club was established in 2013 to organize events that bring students of the ITM concentration and people from the technology community together in mutually beneficial ways. Joining MIS club is a great way to learn about technologies companies are using and trends in the IT field. It is also a great resume builder, effective way to network, and makes finding an internship or job easy.

Activities include:

- Professional Panel Discussions
- Company Information Sessions
- Workshops
- Annual BizTech Case Competition
- Other IT-centric Activities

Membership is open to all Georgia Tech Undergraduate students.
